What personally identifiable information is being collected?

When you visit the FiberChrom's website, in order for us to provide you with the more information regarding a question, concern or advice you have the option of filling out an online form regarding your inquiry. You are asked to provide us with personally identifiable information such as your name, phone number and e-mail address. We will store a record of your inquiry along with your e-mail address. As well, we have an optional feedback survey which is used to enhance our website and services, there is no personal information collected in this survey. In addition, our web servers track various technical details about your visit, such as your computer's IP address and which pages you visited, however that information does not typically contain any personally identifiable information about you.

How is the information being used?

The sole purpose of the online inquiry form and the feedback survey is to improve our website to better serve your needs. The personal information given in the online inquiry form provides us with a means of contacting you regarding your inquiry.

With whom do we share your information?

It is important to note that FiberChrom will never disclose your personal information with third parties. Your personal information can only be accessed by FiberChrom. We will never disclose any personal information to parties outside of FiberChrom without your explicit prior consent with the exception of the following:

The following are the only times at which FiberChrom may disclose your personal information: upon request by a legal authority or in good faith when such action is deemed necessary (a) in order to abide by applicable laws or regulations or to intervene in a lawsuit against FiberChrom ; (b) in order to protect or defend the legal or property rights of FiberChrom or those of its users; and (c) to intervene, under extreme circumstances, in order to protect the personal safety of FiberChrom employees or the safety of the general public.

What are cookies and how do we use them?

A cookie is a block of text placed in a file on the user's hard drive by a website you've visited. These types of cookies cannot identify an individual user specifically, such as by name or address, unless the cookie data is attached to personally identifiable information. FiberChrom uses cookies to observe our site visitor's navigation throughout the site. This helps us identify ways to improve our site efficiency.

What choices are available to you regarding the collection, use and distribution of the information and how you can correct any inaccuracies in information?

If you do not want to receive e-mail from us in the future or if you have a correction or update to your e-mail, please let us know by calling, sending an e-mail, or by writing to us at the above postal address.

Third Party Sites:

The FiberChrom's website contains links to third-party websites; these are provided solely for your convenience. Clicking on these links will take you outside of the FiberChrom's website. Please be advised that FiberChrom has no control over these third-party sites and, while the FiberChrom's website may feature such links, FiberChrom will not, at any time, accept liability for these sites. We encourage our users who visit external sites from links within well-labs.com to read the privacy statements of those sites, as their privacy practices may differ from ours.
